

where we hoped to get the work better organized. He never was very tolerant of too much talk, however, and a familiar and often much-needed bit of advice from him was, "Let's stop talking and do some work."

THE COMMUNITY COUNCIL

Established last spring, the Community Council has two main functions. First, to enable all community members to share realistically in the governing of the community. Second, to thus free the faculty to concentrate its weekly meetings upon matters of more direct academic or educational concern.

Composed of representatives elected from the students, faculty, staff members and wives, the Community Council operates under authority of its own which was delegated to it by the faculty. This means that the total community now participates in decisions on matters of concern to the total community. Formerly, since such authority resided in the faculty, there was always the possibility of the faculty over-ruling decisions of the student government. Also the staff members and the faculty wives previously had no direct voice in determining community policy.

At the present time the Community Council is preparing a program of community education which will lead to a democratic decision by the community as to how the emergency buildings given us by the Federal Government are to be utilized.

The personnel of the Community Council is as follows:

REPRESENTING THE FACULTY

Mary Gregory
Johanna Jalowetz
John Wallen (Chairman)

REPRESENTING STAFF MEMBERS AND FACULTY WIVES

Alice Rondthaler

REPRESENTING THE STUDENTS

Olavi Sihvonen
Harry Weitzer
Jose Yglesias (Secretary)

REPRESENTATIVE AT LARGE

HARRIETT ENGELHARDT MEMORIAL COLLECTION

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Engelhardt of Birmingham, Alabama, parents of Harriett Engelhardt, a student at Black Mountain College in 1939, have generously made a gift of $2,011.31, the entire amount of Harriett's estate, to the College to be used in memory of Harriett. She was killed in Germany, October 26, 1945, in a jeep accident, while serving overseas with the American Red Cross.

Part of the sum represents a contribution by the Japanese American 522 Field Artillery Battalion with whom Harriett had worked for several months; part was a personal gift of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Lobman of Birmingham; the major portion was what Harriett had saved out of her earnings as an aeroplane mechanic and Red Cross worker.

Since Harriett was especially interested in work in Weaving, the project for this memorial will be a collection of textiles to be known as the Harriett Engelhardt Memorial Collection. The material for this memorial is to be collected under the direction of Anni Albers, adviser to Harriett while she was at Black Mountain College. In order to display the textiles, ancient and modern, part of the gift is to be used for
